Dear Majority Leader Reid, Minority Leader McConnell, Speaker Boehner and Democratic Leader Pelosi:

We write to urge you to extend federal unemployment benefits for millions of Americans by extending the Emergency Unemployment Compensation (EUC) program. As you know, 1.3 million jobless workers, including 20,000 recent military veterans, experienced the end of their benefits on December 28th, and nearly another 1.9 million will lose their unemployment benefits over the first half of this year. In the past, Congress has extended unemployment benefits during similar economic downturns. Failure to extend it now would only halt our economic recovery and undo the progress that we have made since the height of the recent downturn. In fact, inaction would reduce economic growth by an estimated $38 billion and would eliminate approximately 310,000 jobs from the U.S. economy.

Congress should extend unemployment benefits, as many states continue to experience persistent levels of high unemployment. Unemployment insurance has been effective in providing stability to our states' economies during times of uncertainty and weakness. Our country's jobless population spends unemployment benefits on rent, groceries, and other key necessities for themselves and their families. Our businesses and local communities benefit from the increased spending, and in turn, the EUC program helps to increase economic activity. Thus, not only does the EUC program benefit the long-term unemployed, but it also helps to inject revenue into our local economies, which saves and creates critically needed jobs throughout our economy. For this reason, economists widely recognize that government spending on unemployment insurance benefits is one of the most effective tools for increasing economic activity in a period of persistently high unemployment.

As the economy continues to recover, it remains difficult for long term unemployed workers to find jobs — the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that for every job opening, there are 2.9 unemployed workers to fill it. Therefore, we ask you to extend the EUC program and continue this important safety net for millions of unemployed workers and families.

Sincerely,
